Washington, D.C. is unique among American cities because it was established by the Constitution of the United States to serve as the nation's capital. To design the city, he appointed Pierre Charles L'Enfant, who presented a vision for a bold, modern city featuring grand boulevards and ceremonial spaces reminiscent of another great world capital, L'Enfant's native Paris. The location was a compromise: Alexander Hamilton and northern states wanted the new federal government to assume Revolutionary War debts, and Thomas Jefferson and southern states who wanted the capital placed in a location friendly to slave-holding agricultural interests.

MEET YOUR OFFICERS

Housekeeping Manager – Lauren Devore

A self-proclaimed, corrosively funny Scrabble Champion, Lauren is a native Long Islander now residing in Tampa. She lives with her twenty year-old cat, four year-old dog, and (undisclosed age) favorite human. During her time off, she's most likely to be found at the beach, a brewery, or taking a joyride in her Jeep. She loves New England IPAs and doesn't understand why anyone still drinks filtered beer. The mantra she lives by is "I'll try anything twice."
